Hiring Manager
ADP
Charlotte, NC

Dear Hiring Manager,

The first ninety days in an ADP territory are about one thing: how many qualified conversations can you create with business owners who do not currently know they need ADP? I have been answering that question for four years across multimillion-dollar territories — and my answer has always been: more than quota requires. I am applying for the Entry Level Outside Sales role in Charlotte because this territory is exactly the environment where my prospecting-first skill set will produce results.

At TTI, I built daily new business cadence across a $4.06M multi-brand territory — cold-calling buyer decision-makers, building relationships from scratch with accounts that had no existing brand preference, and converting that activity into 5.15% year-over-year revenue growth. At KraftMaid, I managed 23 established accounts while simultaneously developing new opportunities within the portfolio — growing market share during an industry contraction by staying more active and more prepared than competing reps. I achieved 145% of monthly quota in January 2026 through a combination of high-frequency activity and disciplined pipeline management inside Salesforce CRM.

Selling payroll and HR solutions to small businesses with 1–49 employees is a volume prospecting game: high call activity, efficient qualification, fast objection handling, and consistent follow-through. My DCU experience adds another dimension here — I closed 50+ financial products per month via phone-based consultative selling to consumers who had not intended to buy when the call started. That experience in rapid-cycle closing from a cold start applies directly to ADP's SMB prospecting model.

I am relocating to Charlotte with no timeline constraints and can start immediately. The uncapped commission structure and the opportunity to build a book of business in a growing market are exactly what I am looking for. I would welcome the chance to discuss the Charlotte territory and what you need from a rep to make 2026 the strongest year this market has seen.

Sincerely,
Collin Celic
