Relocating to Charlotte / Raleigh, NC — Available Immediately

Hiring Manager
Fastenal
Charlotte, NC

Dear Hiring Manager,

Face-to-face prospecting to manufacturing, construction, and industrial accounts — walking in the door, qualifying the right decision-maker, and building the kind of on-site relationships that make you the supplier they call before they check anyone else — this is Fastenal's field sales model in Charlotte, and it is an environment where my background in high-activity B2B territory sales will translate directly.

At TTI, I was on the floor of construction supply stores and industrial accounts every day — cold-calling buyers, building relationships with department managers, and driving new business through in-person engagement with decision-makers who had no shortage of competing sales reps walking in behind me. I drove 5.15% year-over-year revenue growth on a $4.06M territory by being more prepared, more present, and more useful than the competition. At KraftMaid, I managed 23 B2B accounts and a $5.47M portfolio, combining active new business prospecting with disciplined account management — hitting 145% of monthly quota in January 2026 during a market contraction.

Fastenal's industrial/MRO customer base — manufacturers, contractors, and operations buyers who care about supply reliability, price, and relationship trust above all else — is a buyer profile I understand from years of calling on professional trade accounts. I use Salesforce CRM to manage territory activity and pipeline, and I know how to structure a call plan that covers the geography without leaving opportunity uncalled. The industrial product context is one I will learn quickly; the field selling skills are already in place.

I am relocating to Charlotte immediately with no start date constraints. Fastenal's reputation for promoting from within and rewarding performance-based territory development is exactly the career structure I am looking for. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss the Outside Sales role and what the Charlotte territory's growth priorities look like.

Sincerely,

Collin Celic
