Hiring Manager
Stryker — Surgical Technologies
Raleigh, NC

Dear Hiring Manager,

Managing a $5.47M territory to 145% of quota during an industry-wide downturn is not a line on a resume — it is the single best preview of what I will do for a Stryker territory in Raleigh. I am writing because the Sales Representative role on the Surgical Technologies team is exactly the type of high-stakes, relationship-driven field position I have been building toward.

My background at KraftMaid Cabinetry gave me full P&L responsibility across 23 accounts: territory planning with Salesforce and Power BI, consultative engagement with owner-operators and professional buyers, structured product education at every location, and the competitive discipline to grow market share while the industry contracted 8%. At TTI, I managed a $4.06M multi-brand territory (Milwaukee Tool, Ryobi, Ridgid) and delivered 5.15% year-over-year revenue growth through daily face-to-face field prospecting and in-person product demonstrations. These are not analogous experiences — they are the core mechanics of what a strong Stryker rep does, applied in a different vertical.

I understand that Surgical Technologies is a different sales environment than consumer goods. But the skills Stryker actually evaluates in this role — persuasive product demonstrations in front of skeptical clinical professionals, competitive account displacement, disciplined CRM-driven territory management, and the resilience to keep performing in a high-pressure quota environment — are exactly what I bring. I am willing to earn my credibility in the OR context by studying the product line with the same intensity I applied to learning KraftMaid's 500-SKU catalog.

I am relocating to Raleigh permanently and am prepared to start on your timeline with zero logistics delay. I want to be in the territory. I would welcome a conversation about what the Raleigh South opportunity requires and how I can meet that standard from day one.

Sincerely,
Collin Celic
