Hiring Manager
UniFirst Corporation
Raleigh-Durham, NC

Dear Hiring Manager,

When a business switches its uniform service provider, they are not switching on price alone — they are switching because a rep showed up consistently, built trust, and made a compelling enough case to justify the disruption. Building that kind of competitive account displacement is what I do, and it is why I am applying for the Outside Sales Representative role at UniFirst in Raleigh-Durham.

At KraftMaid Cabinetry, I grew market share during an industry-wide 8% downturn by displacing entrenched competitor relationships through superior service, consultative engagement, and a consistent field presence that my competitors stopped providing. I hit 145% of monthly quota in January 2026 on a $5.47M territory, managing everything from cold prospecting and discovery through contract negotiation and long-term account management. At TTI, I convinced professional buyers to switch from established tool brands by making the performance case in person, live, in front of the product — 5.15% YOY growth on a $4.06M territory through daily face-to-face competitive selling.

Raleigh-Durham is one of the fastest-growing business corridors in the Southeast, which means a growing supply of uncontracted and dissatisfied accounts that are open to switching. I want to be the UniFirst rep calling on those businesses. My Salesforce-driven pipeline management, daily prospecting discipline, and competitive new account closing track record are the right tools for that opportunity.

I am relocating to the Triangle area immediately with no constraints on start date. I would welcome the chance to discuss the Raleigh-Durham territory and what winning looks like for UniFirst in this market.

Sincerely,

Collin Celic
